RRALIZING THE AMERICAN DREAM...Lynphus Henry and his daughter, Lataunya Smith, stand on the steps of their own home on S.W. Third Avenue, South Bay. Mr. Henry says it's a good neighborhood and he is happy in his new home.

Centro Campesino helps families realize "The American Dream"

Editor
Lynphus Henry used to live in a housing project in Belle Glade. He dreamed of the day be could move his family into a home of their own.
That dream came true this year, thanks to the help of Centro Campesino Farmwork.

year, thanks to the help of Centro Campesino Farmwork-er Centre, Inc. in South Bay. Centro Campesino is a non-profit organization founded by Hispanic farmworkers in Dade County. This group set a goal to improve the living condi-tions and self-sufficiency of low-income families of all nationalities. Mr. Henry and his wife and low-income families of all nationalities.

Mr. Henry and his wife and several children now have a wood structure home in South Bay in what he says is a quiet neighborhood, just behind the Centro Campasino office on Southwest Third Street.

We like it here. It's a pretty good neighborhood, he tellisson for Centro Campesino. Centro Campesino helped Mr. Henry get a bank loan through a consortium of banks. The low interest loans are for first time buyers and if they in to help with the final funding. Centro Campesino has been able to help 20 to 25 families into homes this year.

"Since wa opened three years ago, we put over 60 families into homes, said Mr. Anderson.
It's rewarding job, says Mr.
Anderson, but he wishes they could do more. He sees families living in substandard housing and mobile homes in South Bay and Belle Glade. He spends most of his time helping families who live in substandard mobile homes.
"We have 40 people in Palm Beach County on a waiting list," he said. "Were inundated with requests for help."
One of the problems faced by Centro Campesino in the Glades is a severe lack of qualified carpenters to do the work.
For the rehab portion we hire
sub-contractors," said Mr.

Mr. Anderson said since April, the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and the Department of Business and Professional Regulators have started scrutinizing housing in the Glades.

This may likely put some families without a place to live, said Mr. Anderson, who said without a place to live, said Mr. Anderson, who said wortes because Florida Fix monies for Palm Beach County is drying up and could make it harder for families to get into their own home.

For Mr. Henry, help was there when he needed it and he is enjoying his small piece of the American Dream.

the City of Belle Glade gave an incerrect amount for the city's total operating budget for fiscal year 1996-97. Ad valorem taxes are only one small percentage of the amount the city raises to fund goods and services for city gov-ernment. The total city budget for 1996-97 is $24,528,948.

News Briefs

Shriners to host clinic Amara Shrine Temple will be conducting a screening clinic at Glades General Hospital, Belle Glade, on Sept. 28 from 10 a.m.

Glade, on Sept. 28 from 10 am. Shrine affiliated physicians will examine children under 18 years to ascertain if they have an orthopedic problem that could be helped with treatment at a Shrine Hospital. They will also see children with scaring from burns or lacerations who would benefit emotionally and physically from cosmetic surgery.

There is never a charge for treatment at the Shrine Hospital so this will provide an opportunity for children of families who have financial problems and/or no medical insurance to receive the care they need to help them live a more normal infe.

Men of the Thunderstorm Project studied the storms

By Mike Lyons At the time, it accident in the history of American commercial aviation. In August of 1940, a DC-3 crashed in a thunderstorm near Lovettesville, Virginia. Twenty four people were killed including a U.S. Senator from Minnesota. This was not the first airliner to go down in a thunder-storm but Congress was deter-mined to make sure that it was the last. Within a few mouths, Congress ordered the Weather Bureau to study thunder-storms. The result was some-thing called The Thunderstorm Protect.

Fifty years ago this summer, lozens of researchers and sci-ntists equipped with radars, airplanes, weather balloons and a variety of weather instruments came to central Florida to analyze thunderstorms.

The observations and theories developed during The Thunderstorm Project remain the cornerstone for understanding thunderstorms. To put it another way, we learned more about storms in one summer than we had in decades.

The Weather Bureau chose University of Chicago meteorologist Horace, Byers to head the project. Byers had a budget of $185,000 and seemed leternined to spend every penty.

mined to spend every penny.

"We will make measurements in thunderstorms by means of aircraft, balloons, and radar, all tied together to a micronetwork of surface stations," he said in 1946. "We tions," he said in 1946. "We will study and probe the thun-derstorm in much the same way that a zoologist studies a new organism."

In fact, when a thunderstorm developed over Florida, it was literally attacked by the men of The Thunderstorm Project Five airplanes, separated by 5,000 feet, would make a simultaneous penetration of the storm. The planes would analyze the storm from top to

At the same time, the surface At the same time, the surface network of self-recording sta-tions would keep track of the temperature, the winds and the air pressure. And, radars and weather balloons would monitor the thunderstorm from the perimeter of the

The objective was to obtain the maximum number of tra-verses through each storm and to sample storms in all stages of development," said Roscoe Braham, one of the scientists who worked on the project. "No storm was to be avoided cause it appeared too big."

That goal created some prob-lems. More thunderstorms develop in Florida than any other state. And, many of those storms can become very violent.

"Twenty-one times the planes were struck by lightning," said Braham. "Occasionally, hall striking the planes ather large, causing 2-3 was rather large, causing 2-3 inch dents." Remarkably, no one was hurt and damage to the planes was minor.

That's even more amazing considering how much time these planes spent inside the storms. "The P-61's had a total of 1,362 storm penetrations adding up to over 70 hours inside thunderstorm clouds," said Braham

Yet, all the time, money and ffort paid off in the end. Scientists learned for the first time how a thunderstorm forms and that a storm has a forms and that a storm has a life cycle. The Thunderstorm Project uncovered a number of other secrets of storms including how hail originates, the development of tornadoes and microbursts of wind.

Surviving members of The Thunderstorm Project plan a 50th year reunion in December in Cocoa Beach. December is traditionally a dry month in the Sunshine state but if a thunderstorm does developchances are no one involved in The Thunderstorm Project will

Day and also Glades Central.

The problem was that at half time the LaBelle announcers were honoring past players who are playing ball in college today. This commissioner yelled out "We don't care who's going to college playing ball."

Well, commissioner, I have a nephew who graduated from LaBelle two years ago. I'm proud of him going on to college and representing the good people of LaBelle, Maybe you wouldn't feel so bad if you could get someone to mention your children and where they went to college and represented you and your town. So you see, commissioner, we were taping the game and we have your very words on tape. You owe the people of LaBelle, the City of Belle Glade, Glades Day an apology.

Also, we are waiting to see how you deny this, Mr. City Commissioner Tucker, we are waiting for your apology to the people of Belle Glade and LaBelle.

We can give this tape to the West Palm newspaper, Please respond.

City Commissioner Crate "Happy" Tucker

City Commissioner Crate "Happy" Tucker responds:
'In response to the Speak Out concerning the Glades Day School - LaBelle football game, I do not recall making a negative comment. However, during half-time, there is always a lot of excitement, particularly when your school is a 2A school and it is leading a 5-A school 27-0. I have two children who are college graduate and one entering college next year, and I have always been a strong supporter of academic as well as athletic excellence. I have the utmost respect for the students from both of these schools. If I made a comment during the excitement of the evening that was taken to be negative, I can assure you it was not my intention to offend any of these student athletes or their parents."

How do you decide which are for blacks or whites?

On Sept. 9, 1996, Commissioner Dan Bythwood made a statement in the Palm Beach newspaper that the city parks in the white sections of town were nicer than the parks in the black sections.

black sections.
If he'll look at the city park on the corner of Northeast Avenue I and Northeast 21st Street, I think he might change his mind.
Also, I don't see how he can differentiate the difference between the white section and the black section. In that particular section of town, there are a number of races - Blacks, His-panics, Arabs and also white people. They live in this part of town.

I'd like to know how he differentiates the white section and the black section of town. Thank you."

Coverage of GDS game by The Sun was slanted

In purchasing your newspaper this morning and turning to your sports section, I was kinda disappointed by the article by Roger Alexander, who covered the Glades Day School Gators against LaBelle.

The article was biased towards LaBelle in is far as reporting most of their plays and barely mentioning the plays the Gators had.

None of the players who made the plays for the Gators were mentioned. I think that Mr. Alexander needs to make sure he gets his facts straight and report from the hometown side of the ball rather than the opposition side of the ball.

Other than that, things look fine. Thank Belitor's response: You're right, that was a slanted story and we'll try to do better. In defense of Roger Alexander, though, he was doing us a favor by sharing his story. Our regular writer could not attend this game so we asked Mr. Alexander, who writes for our sister newspaper, the Caloosa Belle, to share his story. We tried to balance it a little by calling Coach Perez and getting a couple of quotes, but we weren't at the game, so we were unable to do much more. We'll do better next week, we hope, and we also hope to have some good pictures, too.

Thanks for Speaking Out. Thanks for Speaking Out.

All trends point to healthier Everglades and strong tourism industry

By Cathie Welsh
Alliance of Florida Sugar Farmers Tourists in record numbers are pouring into South Florida, fishing in the Everglades is the best it's been in half a decade, nesting birds are returning, good quality water is flowing into Everglades National Park and Florida Bay, and travism toke are recovering.

tourism jobs are growing.

These are just a few of the signs of health of the South Florida ecosystem and tourism industry that contradict claims that both are threattry that contradict claims that both are threatened by farming. Backers of a $900 million, penpa-pound tax on Florida sugar farmers have been selling Floridians that South Florida's tourism industry is being threatened by continued farming; and that the Everglades system is, rapidly being testroyed.

Ignoring the fact that two-thirds of the drained Everglades is devoted to urban development, and that sugar farm runoff does not even flow into Florida's Bay, this group has blamed sugar farming for South Florida's actual and now imagined environmental and economic problems.

problems.

Far from being under the threat of ahrinking or losing jobs, South Florida's tourism industry is seeing record growth in terms of visitors, income and jobs. During the most recent tourist season, visitors to greater Miami spent $2.4 billion more, a 50 percent increase, than they did a year ago. That increase alone, according the the U.S. Travel Data Center, should support an additional 39,000 jobs. In fact, through this decade South Florida tourism has been increasing steadily in the Kewa alone tourist tay.

decade South Florida tourism has been increasing steadily. In the Keys alone, tourist tax receipts have increased by 47 percent between 1989 and 1985.
Similarly, fishing enthusiasts are finding bigger catches in the Everglades than atany time in the past five years, according to the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. During a recent reporting period, bass catches were more than 14 times greater than the previous year. Not only are the fish more plentiful, but they are also larger, as big as 7 3/4 pounds. Burkett Neely, manager of the Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatche National Wildlife Refuge in the northern part of the Everglades has been quoted as saying, Fishermen are catching a lot of fish, so that's a sign to me that the marsh is healthy. He also noted that in addition to increases in fish populations, "the birds are metastring to nest."

At the south end of the Everglades system, Florida Bay, which has been suffering from effects of the more than 30,000 illegal casepits and improperly installed septic tanks located in the Keys, as well as leisure boat discharges and municipal waste, has also shown signs of restored health. Florida Bay News, a publication of Everglades National Park reported in their spring issue that "Florida Bay may be in the best condition in 20 years' demonstrating that, "the Bay has the ability to recover quickly given the right conditions."

Last month a group of scientists examining mutrient problems in the Bay reported that "Jood water," is coming into the Bay from the castern Everglades National Park. John Hunt, research manager for the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, noted that algae blooms have remained unchanged or decreased during the heavy rains of the past three years. If this fresh water had very high levels of nutrients, as originally thought, algae blooms would have increased. At the same time, a presentation by the South Florida Management District confirmed yet again, that water from the Everglades Agricultural Area where sugar is grown, does not enter the Bay and therefore has no impact on the water quality of the Bay.

In the Everglades itself, water quality has greatly improved. Monitoring stations operated by the District under federally approved guidelines show that water quality in Everglades National Park and the Lozahatchee National Wildlife Refuge is even better than mandated under the Everglades Forever Act and a federal water quality lawsuit settlement agreement. Phosphorus concentrations of water entering Everglades National Park have been at or below was resuired. Water quality has soon timed to water entering Everglades National Park have been at or below was resuired. Water quality has continued to was resuired. Water quality has continued to was resuired.

Everglades National Park have been at or below the government set maximum limit since September 1994 - more than two years before it was required. Water quality has continued to improve steadly, averaging less than 10 parts per billion - cleaner than bottled water. Similarly, phosphorus concentrations in the Loxahatchee have been at five parts per billion, a level barely measurable by South Florida Water Management District laboratory proce-dures. Phosphorus limits here have been met since 1992, five years ahead of schedule.

Fruits and vegetables better than pills, researchers say in normal diets, and the toxic effects of large amounts of some vitamins and phytochemicals, and combinations of them, are still not known. '9 That's one reason why taking large doese of vitamin and phytochemical supplement pills is not advisable, the researchers pointed out. 'Many people believe that if a little is good, more must be better, 'Professor Meadows commented.' In fact, overdoing any one thing often has negative effects. When people rely too much on supplement pills, they tend to forget about eating a balanced diet.' Other uncertainties, Professor Meadows said, are the lack of standardization in the manufacture and labeling of complex phytochemical supplements, and not knowing how early in life or how long consumers have to take them to get beneficial effects.

For example, people may take supplement pills that claim to isolate the phytochemicals such as beta-carotene or sulphur compounds

However, in reality there may be so much processing in making supplements that the chemical composition of the compounds may be altered and ultimately yield few health benefits for the consumer, noted Dr. John D. world Cancer nesseath t surple, has wiped out diet and cancer.

"Decolorized garlic, for example, has wiped out at least half of the sulphur compounds that are beneficial in garlic. And to release a number of compounds in a vegetable such as garlic, you need to chew it, crush it, or cook it. But if you don't like the odor of garlic, you can eat a number of other foods and perhaps get the same benefit from different compounds with overlaping effects, and that's the point of eating a variety of vegetables and fruits."

As for the familiar refraint of not time to cook," the researchers advised Americans to put thealth before convenience by making the time

chips and take a pill to counteract the negative effects. But that's not very realistic.
Professor Méadows advised looking at what we can do to eat for better health. The food industry is expected to manufacture more foods fortified with phytochemicals and other health protectors, following the current trend of foods now available with extra calcium, such as orange juice and breakfast cereals.
For now, the researchers agreed, the best way to fortify our health and eat for lower cancer frozen vegetables and the wide variety of fresh fruit and vegetables that are more available than ever before.

Davis.

Davis.
She says she wants to continue to build upon the progress that has already begun in the city and bring industry and businesses to the area.
She would like to see young seeple from South Bay who have gone on to college return to their home and bring their experties back to benefit the city.
The a nut shell, I may not be able to make every individual in the city happy, but my goal is to better the conditions of the community as a whole.

Dorothy J. Davis
ated from Lake Shore High School in 1964 and attended the College of Boca Raton and the University of Miami.
Bay Fest, the upcoming festival in South Bay, is another project ahe is helping with and ahe is also a member of Mt. Calvary Saptist Church, where she sings in the choir. She has three children, Allen Davis, Angela Williams and Jaman Davis, and four grandchildren.
Mrs. Davis says her goals for South Bay include more activities for the youth, including a center where they can go to have activities and a senior citizen center for South Bay's eldery residents.

'I'm also looking for other

y residents.
"I'm also looking for other businesses to come to South Bay to provide jobs for our citizens,"

Willie Styles

goals is to bring new business to the city. "Homeowners in South Say are paying high taxes, if we can bring more businesses to South Bay, taxes could be sduced," he says. He would also like to see a senior citizen center in South Bay. "The City of South Bay could take Villa Lago and make it a senior citizen center for the rly." he noted.

Farm Bureau passes two resolutions

The Florida Farm Bureau Sugar Advisory Committee met in Belle Glade, at 10 am. Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1996.

Those in attendance were David Beardsley of Clewiston, Wayne Browning of Moore Haven, Roger Hatton of Pahokee, Rick Roth and Robert Underbrink of Belle Glade, and Kevin Kelley of the Florida Farm Bureau staff based in Gainesville.

The meeting was called to order by David Beardsley, Chairman. Barbara Miedema, Public Relations spokesperson for the Sugar Cane Grower Cooperative, gave the committee an update on the Sugar Industry's efforts to inform voters why the upcoming penny-apound amendment should be defeated.

The pommittee passed two resolutions, which will be voted on at the upcoming Florida Farm Bureau annual convention, which will be held in Orlando on Nov. 2-4, 1996.

Resolution 81: We support changes to the state constitution amendment procedure to preclude tax issues from being placed on the ballot by petition initiatives.

Resolution 82: We oppose efforts to single out one sector of the economy to pay a dispreportionate share of the cost of any ecosystem restoration program.

Florida Farm Bureau is a federation made up of 64 County Farm Bureaus in Florida. The resolutions committee is made up of voting delegates from each County Farm Bureau. Resolutions passed at the convention will be included in the Florida Farm Bureau policy manual, which gives Farm Bureau staff direction on how to deal with Issues important to agriculture and Farm Bureau members.

The Blue Devil defense, led by Anthony Williams, All-Area

player Ronald Boldin, Willie Rleckley, Javoski Harvey, Hetry Waré, Roland Jackson, Andre Snead and LaNorris Michel kept the Falcons wondering from which angle they would attack all evening. Roland Jackson had a quarterback sack. The Falcons were usually greeted by a host of blue.

Pahokee, ranked sixth in the Palm Beach County poll will meet Cocoa Beach in their first conference game Sept. 27.

Junior Varsity Gators off to a good start

By Jeff Hawkins
The JV Gators Football team opened the season at Moore Haven with a 26-0 victory over the Terriers. The Gator defense only allowed 96 total yards and no touchdowns. Eric Prescott had eight tackles and two assists, backed by Josh Crawford who had seven tackles and one assist. Ronald Rimes led to
